

at Illinois State University offers views of war from a worldwide array of artists

ph/STEVE SMEDLEY bin Laden.

responded Web sites (22 in printable digi-
of which occupy
the gallery.
the overflow of ous edition of hung" on the Web site,
ries.com.
ple feel deeply
send art to a ow from Adam
ng," says Blind-
at he's "been e student e works by wn artists.
ay, though, "the out quality or world snob-
ssion — art's ely mission to and views of

John Walker of Normal submitted his collage, "Missile Defense Spending," to the show at ISU.

At a glance

Event: "Ready For War," non-juried show featuring nearly 200 works in various media by 140 artists from around the world

Times and dates: 9:30 a.m. to 9 p.m.
Tuesday, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.
Wednesday through Friday, noon to 4 p.m. Saturday through Monday; through March 18

Venue: ISU University Galleries II
in the Center for the Visual Arts

Admission: Free

Information number: (309) 438-5487

On the Net: www.universitygalleries.com, which will include both works exhibited in galleries and links to 22 artist Web sites submitted to the exhibition

Special events

In connection with the "Ready For War" exhibit, the following special events have been scheduled:

▶ An artists' reception will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Tuesday in the galleries. Several of the local artists featured in the exhibit are expected to attend. As of this story's deadline, curator Barry Blinderman was attempting to line up several special guest speakers.

▶ Director Terrence Malick's screen remake of the James Jones' anti-war novel, "The Thin Red Line," will be shown in the galleries at 7 p.m. March 6. Admission is free.

▶ A panel discussion on the impending war with Iraq, led by ISU history professor Mohamad Tavakoli-Targhi, will be from 1 to 3 p.m. March 18, the day the exhibit closes.