POLIS, MN, USA, March 1, 2022 /EINPresswire.com/ -- Susan Hensel Gallery on Artsy.net is exhibiting a new online exclusive show Minneapolis sculptor Susan Hensel titled Neotectonic Period: A Radical Proposal for Beauty. Portions of the show will be on exhibit in real life at the Benedictine Center of St. Pauls Monastery for the month of April.

Neotectonic Period: A Radical Proposal for Beauty is a new solo exhibition of mixed media sculpture by Susan Hensel. Running from March 15th to May 15th on the Susan Hensel Gallery's online Artsy platform, the show exhibits the artist's groundbreaking digital embroidery techniques combined with a variety of materials.

The stunning array of objects blends Hensel's familiar mastery of textile sculpture with many new ideas and approaches. Part study in color and form, part art-as-a-call-to-arms, Neotectonic is provocative and engaged with the world while still pursuing that ancient goal of producing mesmerizing beauty for its own sake.

The term neotectonic refers to the study of motions and deformations of the Earth's crust as they are happening today. As a science, it seeks to understand and predict earthquakes. The discipline also points to the seismic changes occurring under our feet a nod to other major calamities we face, like climate change, cultural upheaval, the pandemic, and political turmoil.

But Hensel's art is not looking to show us images of these tribulations. Instead, it opens up visions into beauty that allow us to see through the challenges and into a deep well of meaning and, eventually, hope.

At the same time, the folds in the bodies she creates do buckle under forces and appear to morph through collision. In this way, her pieces fulfill the promise of the tectonic activity she names while pursuing the artist's idea of radical beauty.

The Susan Hensel Gallery is happy to present this new exhibit as an online exclusive show as well as an in person show at the Benedictine Center of St. Paul.
